

Faculty Workshop Series: Final Assessment

If you would like to gather assessment data about participants' overall experience of the workshop series, you might ask participants these questions:

How valuable was it to have experienced colleagues sharing information and insights about elements of the evaluation process?

[Not at all; Slightly; Moderately; Very; Extremely]

What else would you like to tell me about this?

How valuable was it to participate in the Bootcamp with peers who were also undergoing evaluations?

[Not at all; Slightly; Moderately; Very; Extremely]

What else would you like to tell me about this?

How effective did you find the workshops in helping you reflect on and prepare materials for your evaluation?

[Not at all; Slightly; Moderately; Very; Extremely]

What else would you like to tell me about this?

How confident are you that you can prepare an effective set of materials, including a letter of self-evaluation, that you will submit as part of your evaluation?

[Not at all; Slightly; Moderately; Very; Extremely]

What else would you like to tell me about this?

How likely would you be to recommend this Bootcamp for Faculty in Evaluation to others?

[Not at all; Slightly; Moderately; Very; Extremely]

What else would you like to tell me about this?

What specific changes would have improved your experience of the Bootcamp?

Is there anything else you'd like to share about your experience of the Bootcamp?